DIMENSION DATA APPOINTS NEW NATIONAL SERVICES DIRECTOR

Sydney, Australia - February 7, 2008 – Dimension Data announced today it has appointed Col Rennie as National Services Director, whose charter is to continue to drive a cohesive approach across all facets of Dimension Data’s services business, focusing on the continuous improvement of the company’s services capability and best-practice engagement with clients.

Mr Rennie brings with him more than 30 years of experience in the ICT industry, spending the majority of that time in services and operational management roles. He is based in Sydney and reports to Ken Westwood, Dimension Data’s Chief Operating Officer.

Before joining Dimension Data, Mr Rennie spent the last 10 years at Avaya - most recently as Asia-Pacific’s Director of Quality and Customer Advocacy. He has also worked for Samsung, Wang and ICL – where he started his career as a mainframe computer engineer and programmer.

Mr Rennie takes over from Mike Patroni, who moved into the role of NSW Solutions Manager in November last year. Specifically, Mr Rennie takes responsibility for Dimension Data’s services business end-to-end in Australia - which includes Managed Services, Professional Services, Project Management and Bid Management.

Commenting on the appointment, Mr Westwood said: “Col brings a wealth of experience and a passion for customer satisfaction and service excellence to Dimension Data. He has a fantastic track record and, I believe, will play a big part in the ongoing evolution of our services business, building on our success in 2007 and the industry recognition we received for our services.”

Reflecting on his new position, Mr Rennie said: "Dimension Data has a big reputation in the industry. The company has been highly successful, has had incredible growth, and has a very talented and skilled workforce. I will spend a bit of time understanding how to help the business be even more successful, and then concentrate on improving what is already a great business by focusing on service efficiency and quality, as well as customer satisfaction levels."

In March 2007, Dimension Data was announced Best Professional Services Firm (revenue over $100 million), Best IT Services Firm, and Best New South Wales Firm in the 2007 BRW-St George Client Choice Awards. In Dimension Data's 2007 financial year, Australian Managed Services revenues were up 17.9% and Professional Services revenues also grew strongly by 33.3%.
